

MISCELLANY.

From the N. Y. Mirror.
FIRST IMPRESSIONS, OR NOTES BY THE WAY.
BY NATHANIEL P. WILLIS.

The Piræus.—The Sacra Via—the ruins of Eleusis—gigantic medallion—costume of the Athenian women—the tomb of Themistocles—the temple of Minerva—autographs.
Piræus.—With a basket of ham and claret in the stern-sheets, a cool awning over our heads, and twelve men at the oars, such as the coxswain of Themistocles' galley might have sighed for, we pulled away from the ship at an early hour for Eleusis. The conqueror of Salamis delayed the battle for the ten o'clock breeze, and as nature (which should be called he instead of she, for her constancy) still ruffles the Egean at the same hour. We had a calm sea through the strait, where once lay the "ships by thousands."

We soon rounded the point, and shot along under the "Rocky brow
Which looks o'er sea-born Salamis."

It is a bare, bold precipice, a little back from the sea, and commands an entire view of the strait. Here sat Xerxes, "on his throne of gold," with many secretaries about him to write down the particulars of the action. The Athenians owed their victory to the wisdom of Themistocles, who managed to draw the Persians into the strait, (scarce a cannon shot across just here,) where only a small part of their immense fleet could act at one time.

* So says Phœnomenus, quoted by Plutarch. The commentators upon the tragedy of Æschylus, on this subject, say that it was a "silver chair," and that it "was afterwards placed in the temple of Minerva, at Athens, with the golden-litened cimeter of Mardonius."

The wind, as the wily Greek had foreseen, rose at the same time, and rendered the lofty-built Persian ships unmanageable; while the Athenian galleys, cut low to the water, were easily brought into action in the most advantageous position. It is impossible to look upon this beautiful and lovely spot, and imagine the stirring picture it presented. The wild sea-bird knows no lonelier place. Yet on that rock once sat the son of Darius, with his royal purple floating to the wind, and, below him, within these rocky limits, lay "one thousand two hundred ships of war and two thousand transports," while behind him, on the shores of the Piræus, were encamped "seven hundred thousand foot and four hundred thousand horse"—"amounting," says Potter in his notes, "with the retinue of women and servants that attended the Asiatic princes in their military expeditions, to more than five millions." How like a king must the royal Persian have felt, when

"He counted them at break of day!"

With an hour or two of fast pulling, we opened into the broad bay of Eleusis. The first Sabbath after the creation could not have been more absolutely silent. Magara was away on the left, Eleusis before us at the distance of four or five miles, and the broad plains where agriculture was first taught by Triptolemus, the poetical home of Ceres, lay an utter desert in the sunshine.—Behind us, between the mountains, descended the Sacra Via, by which the procession came from Athens to celebrate the "Eleusian mysteries"—a road of five or six miles, lined, in the time of Pericles, with temples and tombs. I could half fancy the scene as it was presented to the eyes of the invading Macedonians—when the procession of priests and virgins, accompanied by the whole population of Athens, wound down into the plain, guarded by the shining spears of the army of Alcibiades. It is still doubtful, I believe, whether these imposing ceremonies were the pure observance of a lofty and sincere superstition, or the orgies of licentious saturnalism.

We landed at Eleusis, and were immediately surrounded by a crowd of people, as simple and curious in their manners, and resembling somewhat in their dress and complexion, the Indians of our country. The ruins of a great city lay about us, and our huts were built promiscuously among them. Magnificent fragments of columns and blocks of marble interrupted the path through the village, and between two of the houses lay, half buried, a gigantic medallion of Pentelic marble, representing, in alto relievo, the body and head of a warrior in full armor. A hundred men would move it with difficulty. Commodore Patterson attempted it six years ago, in the Constitution, but his launch was found unequal to its weight.

The people here gathered more closely around the ladies of our party, examining their dress with childish curiosity. They were doubtless the first females ever seen at Eleusis in European costume. One of the ladies happening to pull off her glove, there was a general cry of astonishment. The brown kid had clearly been taken as the color of the hand. Some curiosity was then shown to see their faces, which were covered with thick green veils, as a protection against the sun. The sight of their complexions (in any country remarkable for a dazzling whiteness) completed the astonishment of these children of Ceres.

We, on our part, were scarcely less amused with their costumes in turn. Over the petticoat was worn a loose jacket of white cloth reaching to the knee, and open in front—its edges and sleeves wrought very tastefully with red cord. The head-dress was composed entirely of money. A fillet of gold sequins was first put, a la fenestre, around the forehead, and a close cap, with a throat-piece like the gorget of a helmet, fitted the skull exactly, studded with coins of all values, folded over each other according to their sizes, like scales. The hair was then braided and fell down the back, leaved also with money. Of the fifty or sixty women we saw, I should think one half had money on her head to the amount of from one to two hundred dollars. They suffered us to examine them with perfect good humour. The greater proportion of pieces were paras, a small and thin Turkish coin of very small value. Among the larger pieces were dollars of all nations, five-franc pieces, Sicilian piastres, Tuscan colonnati, Venetian swanscas, &c. &c. I doubted much whether they were not the collections of some pious quack. There is no possibility of either spending or getting money within many miles of Eleusis, and it seemed to be looked upon as an ornament which they had come too lightly by to know its use.

We walked over the foundations of several large temples with the remains of their splendour lying unvalued about them, and at half a mile from the village, came to the "well of Proserpine," whence, say the poets, the ravished daughter of Ceres, emerged from the infernal regions on her visit to her mother. The modern Eleusians know it only as a well of the purest water.

On our return we stopped at the southern point of the Piræus, to see the tomb of Themistocles. We were directed to it by thirteen or fourteen frusta of enormous columns, which once formed the monument to his memory. They buried him close to the edge of the sea opposite Salamis. The continual beat of the waves for so many hundred years has worn away the promontory, and his sarcophagus, which was laid in a grave cut in the solid rock, is now filled by every swell from the Egean. The old hero was brought back from his exile to be gloriously buried. He could not lie better for the repose of his spirit, (if it returned with his bones from Argos.) The sea on which he beat the haughty Persians with his hand of galleys, sends every wave to his feet. The hollows in the rock around his grave are full of snowy salt left by the evaporation. You might scrape up a bushel within six feet of him. It seems a natural tribute to his memory.*

On a high and lonely rock, stretching out into the midst of the sea, stands a solitary temple. As far as the eye can reach, along the coast of Attica and to the distant isles, there is no sign of human habitation.—There it stands, lifted into the blue sky of Greece, like the unreal "fabric of a vision."

Cape Colonna and its "temple of Minerva," were familiar to my memory, but my imagination had pictured nothing half so beautiful. As we approached it from the sea, it seemed so strangely out of place, even for a ruin, so far removed from what had ever been the haunt of man, that I scarce credited my eyes. We could soon count them—thirteen columns of sparkling marble, glittering in the sun. The sea-air keeps them spotlessly white, and, until you approach them nearly, they have the appearance of a structure, from its freshness, still in the sculptor's hands.

The boat was lowered, and the ship lay off-and-on while we landed near the rocks where Falconer was shipwrecked, and mounted to the temple. The summit of the promontory is strewn with the remains of the fallen columns, and their smooth surfaces are thickly inscribed with the names of travellers. Among others, I noticed Byron's and Hobhouse's, and that of the agreeable author of "A year in Spain." Byron, by the way, mentions having narrowly escaped robbery here, by a band of Mainote pirates. He was surprised swimming off the point, by an English vessel containing some ladies of his acquaintance. He concludes the "Isles of Greece" beautifully with an allusion to it by its ancient name:

"Place me on Sunium's marbled steed," &c.

The view from the summit is one of the finest in all Greece. The isle where Plato was sold as a slave, and where Aristides and Demosthenes passed their days in exile, stretches along the west; the wide Egean, sprinkled with here and there a solitary rock, herbless but beautiful in its veil of mist, spreads away from its feet to the southern line of the horizon, and crossing each other almost imperceptibly on the light winds of this summer sea, the red-sailed galleys of Greece, the merchantmen from the Dardanelles, and the heavy men-of-war of England and France, cruising wherever the wind blows fairest, are seen like broad-winged and solitary birds, lying low with spread pinions upon the waters. The place touched me. I shall remember it with an affection.

There is a small island close to Sunium, which was fortified by one of the heroes of the Iliad on his return from Troy—why, heaven only knows. It was here, too, that Phœneus, the pilot of Menelaus, died and was buried.

We returned on board after an absence of two hours from the ship, and are steering now straight for the Dardanelles. The plains of Marathon are but a few hours north of our course, and I pass them unwillingly; but what is there I would not see? Greece lies behind, and I have realized one of my dearest dreams in rambling over its ruins. Travel is an appetite that "grows by what it feeds on."

* Langhorne says in his notice on Plutarch, "There is the genuine attica sal in most of the retorts and observations of themselves. His wit seems to have been equal to his military and political capacity."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 16, 1834.

The Salem Wiggery.—A glorification has been held by the Wigs in Salem, which, as a Boston paper observes, (probably with a mental contrast to the Bank festival in this city,) "was conducted in a manner very honorable to the taste and spirit of the citizens." We are inclined to believe, that some credit is due to the "taste" of the Salem Wigs, (negatively, at least,) when it is compared with specimens which have been exhibited elsewhere. The Salem people are industrious, laborious and enterprising. They are practical men, who have derived wisdom from experience, and who have voyaged beyond the limits of their own dominions. Being good seamen, they know better than to "steer by the planets," and they never pretend to see impossible eclipses. They do not trust the management even of their glorifications, to boys or dandies. We have not heard that any of them swilled so much liquor as to make a display of sickness at table, a la mode de Matthews, as has been the fashion at other "pavilions." In short, they appear to have conducted with as much decorum, as could reasonably have been expected from Wigs, under existing circumstances, in their present desperate struggles for power and office, with the gooding sting of disappointment, and constantly defeated hopes, torturing them to madness.

The Salem Gazette says, that there were present, "long ranks of industrious, enterprising, and intelligent men, whom they (meaning the Republicans) have attempted to stigmatize as low born." This is quite a mistake. For Republicans, read Wigs. The Republicans boast of the laborious, industrious, enterprising citizens. They never stigmatize them. It is of such that their ranks are composed, and it is for the interest of this class that they are contending, in opposition to the selfish monopolies of the rich, fashionable, soft-handed gentry, and those who are in favor of establishing a consolidated monarchy, and a hereditary nobility, upon the ruins of our present happy constitution of equal rights. It is the Wigs, the original opposers of the constitution, the former Essex Juntoists and Hartford Conventionists, who stigmatize the laborious classes, the farmers and mechanics, as "low born." It is the Anti-Jackson party, the Bank faction, that contemptuously styles our respectable yeomanry "furrow turners," and ranks them among the beasts, by denominating their hard hands "HUGE PAWS." "It is as proper," says a leading Wig paper, "for a blacksmith to attempt to repair watches, as a farmer to legislate." After "the solid operations of the day had been performed," as the Wig reporter elegantly expresses it, then came the light stuff, the trifles and froth, which had so often been served up at other tables. Mr Silsbee made a speech, which, from the meagre skeleton given of it, was exceedingly common place—a mere repetition of the electioneering cant, and the groundless charges against the President, which have so often been repeated and repelled.

Mr Webster was soon after knocked down for a speech. He made a very modest disclaimer of the glorification. "It was the cause they were called to plead," said he, "and not the impotent pleaders, for whom all these honors were designed." There is not any novelty in the speech as reported, whatever merit may have been in the harangue as spoken. The same charges, which have been again and again refuted, were again repeated; the same arguments, or substitutes for argument, which senatorial orators, and caucus orators, and bar-room orators, have so often thundered forth, and which have been ten thousand times refuted and confuted, were again brought forward, with "tremendous applause." Mr Webster stated, says the report, "what we believe has never before been made publicly known, that some months before the removal of the deposits was resolved upon, anticipating what was coming, by the tone of the official paper at Washington, he individually protested against it before-hand, through a channel which he knew would convey his opinions to the President." We can hardly believe it possible that Mr W. made this statement—we have a better opinion of his modesty. What reason could he possibly have for supposing, after the part he had previously acted in behalf of the bank, and against the President—after the virulence of his invectives, and his almost identity with the bank itself—that his individual opinion could have any influence with the President? The opinion of Mr Biddle, expressed in the same way, would probably have been viewed in precisely the same light. How could Mr W. place the affected importance of his dictum in so prominent a point of view, in such a quarter?

Again—"Mr Webster showed at length, that it is not the rights of the bank, it is the rights of the people—it is not the money of the bank, it is the money of the people—it is not the liberties of the bank, it is the liberties of the people, which are in question." If Mr W. "showed" all this, he did wonders. If the Salem Wigs swallowed all this, they might have swallowed their wine, bottles and all, and their whole Wiggery into the bargain. We suspect, large as are the Wigs' swallows, that this dose, at least, must have stuck in their throats.

Mr W. exclaimed against "the abuses of the veto power." Yet our truly Wig governor Lincoln exercised that power nearly as often, and perhaps oftener in proportion to the number of acts submitted to him, than President Jackson, and even on some most petty and trifling occasions. Yet the very men lauded the former to the skies for it, who condemn the latter for exercising a duty, which the Constitution has imperatively imposed upon him. The truth is, when a power confided solely to the discretion of the highest officer in the government is not exercised in exact accordance with the opinion of every subordinate individual, it is always "an abuse of power." But whom has the Constitution appointed the final judge in such a case? Certainly not Mr Webster. "Mr W. took his seat amidst tremendous applause." That of course.

We suspect that the first sixth toast was sent by Father Thersites;—or possibly Gov. L. and Gen. D. may have assisted in its construction: "When our eyes shall be turned to behold," &c. &c. The second sixth toast was given in honor of Mr Choate. "Equally distinguished in the forum, the halls of legislation, and the walks of literature." Perhaps this toast would apply "equally" well to Mr Pop Emmons, without necessarily supposing any eminence in either of the "walks," or either of the individuals.

The twelfth toast is—"The removal of the deposits; as the act of the president, not authorized by the Constitution; as the act of the Secretary of the Treasury, not approved by Congress." The act of removal was not the act of the president, and the removal was strictly and literally according to law, as directed by the statute; the Constitution says nothing about it. The Secretary removed them, as he was expressly empowered to do by law. His removing them did not require the "approbation of Congress;" and moreover, Congress has never disapproved of the measure. How many more thousands of times will these stale accusations be repeated.

Sent by J. Q. Adams—"The Constitutional CHECK of the Senate, fearlessly and faithfully applied to the Executive SIMPLE MACHINE." The point of this toast is probably involved in a pun or a conundrum—"We give it up," as Billy Black says.

Mr Gorham sent a letter without a toast. We presume he was too indolent to undergo the exertion of making one.

Mr Webster, as was said above, "exposed the abuses of the veto power" by the President. Indeed?—The real abuses of this power have been carried to the greatest possible excess, not by the President, but by the Senate, supported by the speeches and the votes of Mr Webster. The Wig majority in the Senate have vetoed almost every prominent and necessary act of the president. They vetoed Mr Van Buren's appointment as minister to London, a situation, for which he was peculiarly and remarkably qualified. They vetoed Mr Taney's appointment as Secretary, for which office he was particularly fitted, and whose talents, knowledge, purity and honesty the Senate could not deny or disprove. In short, they have endeavored to embarrass, to stop, and to overturn the government, by the wanton abuse of their veto power, in cases too numerous to be specified.

There is one sentiment in Mr Webster's speech, which we have accidentally omitted to notice. He calls upon all, of every party, north and south, east and west, however unlike and incongruous, to unite in pulling down the present administration. When this is done, said he, "when the Constitution shall be rescued, and our liberties restored, it will be time enough to settle minor differences." That is, when the Republicans shall be defeated, and the liberties of the Nationals, the old Federalists, shall be restored, of bearing absolute and unlimited rule, then we will settle the question, which of us shall be president, and which shall hold the other great offices, and which shall divide the spoils; whether it shall be Mr Clay or Mr Calhoun, Mr Webster or Mr McLean, Mr Rush or Mr Adams.—It will be amusing, in such an event, to see these fast united friends, now joined in the fraternal hug, then scratching and pulling noses, about "which shall be greatest in the kingdom of" Whiggism. In the struggle Whiggism will be decomposed into its former constituent elements, of masonry and antimasonry, tariff and anti-tariff, state rights and consolidation, constructive power and nullification. What a chemical turmoil, what a release of heat and smoke, what an escape of noxious, fetid gases, there will be!—Happy will he be, who gains a height far above this corrupt and noisome atmosphere.

In the late riots there is a lawless spirit of violence abroad in this community, that all must deprecate and condemn; for who will be safe from its fury? Yesterday it was political; to-day, it is religious. Are these midnight leaders of misrule hired braves, or simply patriots, and devotees? Do they look to their God? for their reward, or to their country, and their God? It is high time they were sought out and rewarded for their labors—for these laborers are worthy of their hire—and discharged from any further labors of piety or patriotism. We talk about the chill of Northern blood; but there is no lack of heat in Northern bile.—Suppose, for a moment, the injured should resort to retaliation; the descendants of those who fled from the persecutions of the old world, would soon be glad to fly thither for protection.

Political and religious opinions must find a sanctuary in the laws and constitution, or our social fabric must fall to the earth.

The Montreal papers of Saturday contain the following report of the Physicians at the Cholera Hospital, to Friday, the 8th August, at noon:—

Remained yesterday 20, New Cases 17, Total 37, Dead 9, Removed to Convalescent Sheds 6, Remaining 22.

Mr Durant will make his eleventh Grand Ascension on Thursday, from the Charles street Amphitheatre; which will be well filled on the occasion with the beauty and fashion of the city.

The rumours which have been circulating for two or three days past respecting the health of the venerable Chief Magistrate of this country, have naturally filled the minds of many of his countrymen with anxiety.—We are exceedingly gratified to learn, as we do by the Globe of yesterday morning, that intelligence has been received in Washington from the President since he entered Tennessee, which states that he is well, and that he sustained the journey surprisingly well, considering the extreme heat of the weather, and the fact that he had experienced a sharp bilious attack, at Salem, in Virginia, by which he was detained on the road two or three days. That disorder yielded, however, the Globe states, immediately to medical treatment.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

Shipwreck.—The brig Susan, Ray, hence for Port au Prince, sailed on the 12th inst. from quarantine ground, at 4 o'clock, P. M., with light winds from the S. E. At 10 o'clock same evening, 20 miles E. S. E. of the Hook, she was struck by a squall from S. W., which capsized her, and she immediately filled with water. The captain and crew succeeded in getting on the weather side, and making clear the long boat, which they entered and made for shore;—fell in with a Revenue Cutter at anchor, which proceeded to the brig—cut away her main and foretop-mast, when she righted. All the sails, rigging, &c. attached to the spars were lost. The Susan's cargo consisted of flour, provisions, wine, &c.—all damaged—that part of the cargo, on deck is a total loss. She has been towed into N. Y. harbor.—N. Y. Star.

It is stated in the Wheeling Times, that the Ohio tobacco crop of the present year will be at least equal that of the last—which was above ten thousand hogheads. It is only about fifteen years ago that the first hoghead of tobacco was raised in Ohio for export.

POLICE COURT.

The Defendant Fined, and the Plaintiff Punished.—That "Hearings up," has been, for the past few years, the motto of some of the masters of our City Common Schools, is a truth, that many humble citizens have painfully experienced, and a majority of them, we opine, will not feel any very stirring indignation against the defendant in the following case, nor very deeply sympathize with the "bruised honor" of the complainant.—Mr Lara Crane, a very respectable citizen, was arraigned for an assault on Mr Benjamin Callender, writing master of the Wells school, under the following circumstances:—During the investigation of some charges against Mr Callender, by the School Committee, four young girls, among whom was the daughter of Mr Crane, were called upon to testify to certain facts, the nature of which were not developed in court. In defending himself against the charges alluded to, Mr Callender asserted that one of the girls had been detected in a falsehood in school; and Mr Crane, who was present at the investigation, asked him if he alluded to his daughter; but Mr Callender refused to answer the question. Since that time, Mr Crane has endeavored several times to obtain from Mr Callender an answer to his very proper inquiry, but without success; and last week, he sent, by his daughter, the following letter to him:—

"Boston, August 8th, 1834.

Mr Callender—Sir: I understood you in your defence before the School Committee, on the 28th ult., to say, that one of the girls who had testified before them, had been convicted of falsehood. As my daughter was one who testified, I desire you to inform me if you intended the imputation to mean, or apply to her. If you did mean to apply it to my daughter, please inform me when, and where, and on what occasion, she was convicted.

I feel that solicitude on this subject, which parents usually feel for the welfare, character, and reputation of their children—and I feel a confidence that you will give me full, explicit, and candid answers to the above inquiries. An answer, by the bearer, will oblige Yours, L. CRANE."

In reply to this very reasonable and temperate communication, Mr Callender remarked to the daughter—"Tell your father, I have no answer to make to him." Nothing further happened, till Wednesday noon, when Mr Callender and Mr Crane came in contact, in Hanover street. Mr Crane thrice demanded an answer to the inquiry contained in his letter, but Mr Callender refused to reply, and referred him to the School Committee. Mr Crane then called Mr Callender "a puppy," and applied his fingers to his nose so smartly, as to remove a portion of the skin in tweaking it; and, thereupon, Mr Callender, taking counsel of his friends, brought the subject before the Police Court, where Mr Justice SIMMONS disposed of the case, by remarking, "that it was a very questionable step to come to the Police Court about the affair; that Mr Callender ought to have answered Mr Crane's question, before the Committee; that there was no reason why he should not have answered the letter, and that that circumstance alone ought to be admitted in mitigation of the assault; that Mr Crane's request was a very reasonable one; and that Mr Callender's persisting in his refusal to answer him in the street, was calculated to throw Mr Crane off his guard, and lead him, from the impulse of the moment, to commit the assault; therefore, Mr Clerk, let the defendant pay a fine of $1.00, without costs."

Health of the City.—The annexed report of the Board of Health shows an increase both in the number of cases and deaths. The weather is hot and sultry. At three particular points, each about a mile from either of the others, clusters of cases have occurred, not unlike what was experienced in 1832. But as yet the disease cannot be considered epidemic. Temperate persons, who avoid excessive fatigue and observe a prudent diet, have nothing to fear. Almost all the sufferers are persons in obscure circumstances, and probably a majority of them foreigners. In most cases the attack can be clearly traced to some gross imprudence in eating or drinking, or both.—N. Y. Jour. Com. of Thursday.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—Aug. 14, 1834—12 o'clock at noon.—The Board of Health report since yesterday at 12 o'clock, there have been reported by physicians, in the city generally, and at the Duane street Hospital, eleven deaths* and twenty-four cases of Cholera.

*Three of the above deaths were reported as cases yesterday.

HEALTH OF THE CITY.—Albany, August 13. The City is all but restored to its accustomed health.—There were refreshing showers last night, and we have a fine, clear atmosphere, with a bracing north-west wind, to-day.

The Mail Robbers Taken.—We are pleased to learn by a letter just received from the Postmaster at Cumberland, Md., that four persons have been arrested for the recent attempt to rob the Great Western Mail near that place; one of whom the driver says he is able to identify as one of the two who made the attack. The Postmaster adds, that it is supposed there is a gang of them scattered throughout that neighborhood Mr Lucius W. Stockton, the spirited contractor on that line, is, as he writes, taking such precautions as will enable his driver to "STAND," if hereafter demanded to do so, and dispute the ground with these felons.—Globe.

Isirich Celebration.—The celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Ipswich, will take place this day. A procession is to be formed on the Common, near the South Meeting House, at 10 o'clock, A. M., whence it will move, under a military escort, to the North Meeting House. Addresses are there to be delivered by Rev Dr Dana, of Newburyport, and Hon Rufus Choate, of Salem. After the conclusion of the exercises, subscribers and invited guests will partake of a dinner, in a pavilion erected for the purpose.

Great Despatch.—The steamboat company's new boat Georgia, Captain Lyon, says the Savannah Georgian of the 7th inst., left Savannah at half past one o'clock, P. M., with a tow-boat, on the 2d inst., and arrived at Augusta on the 4th, at half past 1 o'clock, and was detained from running, in consequence of a fog, three hours of that time.

A rencontre took place on the 4th instant, at Jackson, the seat of government of Mississippi, between General Augustus Albert Allen and Alexander Mc Clung, Esq., in which the former was shot in the chin. General Allen it was expected, even as late as Saturday morning, would recover; but before night he ceased to live.

Several dead bodies have been lately found floating in Pearl river, under circumstances leading to the conclusion that they were victims to a band of robbers, to ferret out whom and bring to condign punishment, preparations are being made.—Lexington Ky. Intell.

We are requested to state that a WOODEN SWORD was recently presented to Capt. Wm. C. Shaw, of the 1st brigade Horse Artillery, for his valuable services during the late riots.—N. Y. Trans.

The following is a list of the names of the pupils at the Nursery at the time of its demolition. As many of the scholars owned much valuable property, such as Piano Fortes, Harps, Guitars, Silver Cups, &c., upon which their initials were engraved, and which were stolen at the time of the conflagration, the publication of this list may lead to the detection of the thieves.—Editors of papers in this city and vicinity, will confer a favor upon the public by copying the annexed list, and the statement of property missing. Any information relative to the subject, will be thankfully received by the Committee of Investigation, now sitting at the Common Council Room.

Boston.—Penelope R. Williams, Elizabeth W. Williams, Sarah E. Williams, Melaney A. Williams, Mary Anne N. Fraser, Jane Fraser, Mary Ann Bullard, Caroline Ballard, Louisa Murdoch, Rosamond A. Statement as far as can be ascertained, of the Instruments, plate, and other articles, lost by the Young Ladies, in consequence of the late riot and conflagration at the Ursuline Community, Mount Benedict, Charlestown.

Miss Fraser—one Harp, Piano Forte and Guitar, 13 Music Books, a Portfolio containing about 200 pieces of loose Music, a Silver Tumbler inlaid with gold, desert and Tea Spoon, two Settees of Mahogany, covered with rug work, rose wood Desk and Paint box, completely furnished, inlaid with brass (imported) fancy work of every description. More than 300 pieces of drawing and painting, a gold watch, cross and two chains with other articles of jewelry. Books to the amount of more than a hundred volumes, and all her wearing apparel, except what she had on at the time of her escape.

Miss Pearce—Harp and Stand.

Miss Russell—Harp, Music Books, Silver Tumbler, Spoons, Books and wearing apparel.

Miss Jackson—a Piano Forte, Music Books, Paint box and other drawing Materials, Silver Goblet and Spoons, Books and wearing apparel.

Miss Moriarty—a Piano Forte, Music Books, drawing Materials, Spoons, Books and wearing apparel.

Miss Fay—Guitar, Music Books, Silver Tumbler, Spoons, Books, Paint box and other drawing Materials, a valuable Work box and wearing apparel.

The Misses William's—(four sisters) a Guitar, two Paint boxes, and other drawing Materials, several Music Books, Silver Tumblers and Spoons, Fancy Articles, a number of Paintings, Books, English, French, Italian and Latin, and all their wearing apparel.

Miss Whitey's—Guitar, Music Books, Silver Tumbler and Spoons, Wearing Apparel and Books.

Miss English—Guitar, Music Books, Drawing Materials, Books, Silver Tumbler, Spoons and Wearing Apparel.

The other Young Ladies, as far as can be ascertained, lost their Silver Tumblers and Spoons, Music Books, Drawing and Painting Materials, valuable Birthday Presents, Gold Watches, Rings, Chains and various other Jewelry, Work Boxes, Books and all their wearing apparel, with one exception. All the Plate of the Community, except what belongs to their place of worship, was marked Ursuline Community (in full). They have also lost several Portraits of living and departed friends, Miniatures of relations and friends, Harps, Piano Fortes and Guitars, a superior grand Harmonicon, six Bureaus, filled with patterns for drawing and painting, Bed and Bedding, furnished by the community to every young Lady, with the exception of three or four Gold Medals, Watches and Chains, Clocks, two Libraries, one for the community, and the other for the young ladies, and innumerable other articles, among which may be numbered dear and precious mementos both for the living and departed, which time will not permit me to detail.

Nothing was saved—and in the loss was also comprehended money, to a very large amount, in gold, silver and bank bills, the sum of which cannot be exactly ascertained, as all the papers and account books were destroyed by the flames.

THE SUPERIOR of the Ursuline Convent.

Boston, Aug. 15, 1834.

The Stolen Chalice.—We were informed yesterday that our assertion in the Post, that the Sacramental Chalice, was found among Creesy's (the suicides) effects, was unfounded, and we therefore waited on the Rev. Mr. Healy, a Catholic Clergyman, to ascertain from him the real facts in the case, and have obtained his authority for the following statement:—About 15 minutes before Creesy retired to commit suicide, he stated that he had some of the Sacramental wafer in his possession and in the course of the evening, two pieces of the consecrated bread, which could only have been obtained from the Chalice, belonging to the Convent, were found in Creesy's vest pocket. Mr. Healy has the bread in his possession now. The Transcript refers to the coroner as being authority against this fact, but the bread was not found till after that gentleman had retired from the scene of self murder.

The assertion of the Transcript that our statement "is ENTIRELY FALSE, and without a shadow of foundation," is like a great many other things that appear in that paper—a mistake.

Thunder Storm.—We were visited by a most severe thunder storm last night between the hours of eleven and twelve. The rain fell in torrents, and the flashes of lightning were frequent and vivid. We learn that it struck in several places in this city and vicinity, but have not heard that it has caused much damage.—The roof of the store No. 49 India street, occupied by Messrs. Macomber, Sawing & Hunting, merchants, and the upper story a sail-loft, was struck, and after shattering the boards and slates on the roof, passed off without injury.

It also struck the Oil Factory and wool store of Messrs. Downer & Austin and Mr J. Whitney, situated between Broad street and Purchase street, at the bottom of Fort Hill, but the damage was trifling.—Merc.

Of those who deserve much commendation for their promptness of action during the early period of our danger from a lawless mob, is Captain Howard, of Revenue Cutter Hamilton, who brought his crew on shore, well armed with cutlass, blunderbusses, &c., and quartered with the Infantry companies at Faneuil Hall. Capt H. has been "on hand" since the first alarm, and with his hardy followers, will prove of essential service in case of necessity.—Trans.

PROCLAMATION

BY HIS EXCELLENCY JOHN DAVIS
Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Whereas, it appears from representations made to me by the several Committees of Vigilance of Charlestown and Boston, which representation, in substance, is confirmed by the Attorney General of the Commonwealth, that on the night of the 11th inst. a large number of persons assembled at Charlestown, by preconcerted designs of violence, and proceeded in a high-handed manner, in disregard of the Civil Authorities, and in defiance of the Laws, with fire, and acts of outrage, to demolish the building called the Ursuline Convent, to lay waste the gardens and grounds, and to break open and desecrate the Sepulchres of the Dead, having previously compelled a large number of females, then dwelling in said building, many of whom were pupils in a school, and of tender age, to seek safety in flight, and to take refuge in the fields. And whereas it also appears that after much investigation, the civil magistrates and other officers of the law are unable to discover the perpetrators of this daring outrage, and that the ordinary and common course of proceedings is thus proved to be ineffectual.

Therefore in compliance with the request of said committees, and in pursuance of the authority vested in me by law, I do offer in behalf of the Commonwealth, a reward of five hundred dollars to such person or persons as shall cause the said offenders or any of them to be apprehended and brought to conviction, which sum of five hundred dollars, shall be paid to one or more persons as existing facts upon conviction of an offender or offenders, and the ends of Justice may require.

And I do further call upon all the good citizens of this Commonwealth to aid in healing the wound which the laws have received by the open contempt of their authority, and the wanton disregard of private rights. I appeal to them to be vigilant in preserving the public peace, and in sustaining the civil authority. This discountenance of such proceedings, will restore confidence, and make our peaceable institutions sufficiently powerful to overawe insubordination, and to meet any emergency. If the people will, there will be no more destruction of private property, or invasion of private rights by open acts of violence.

Given under my hand, this fifteenth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, and the fifty-ninth year of the Independence of the United States.

JOHN DAVIS.

By His Excellency the Governor,
EDWARD D. BANGS,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons, that any information concerning the late outrages at Charlestown, will be thankfully received by any Member of the Committee of Investigation, and that the Committee will be in session, every day, at the Common Council Room in State street, at 9 o'clock A. M., and at 4 o'clock P. M. for the transaction of business.—The following are the names of the Committee:—

PATENT CORK FOR COLLARS AND SADDLES.—The American Cork Company offer for sale, ground or grated Cork for stuffing Horse Collars and Saddles. The utility of the article has been fully tested, the past year, in a great number of cases where horses' breasts had become sore and inflamed by the use of the ordinary collars.

It has been proved beyond a doubt, to surpass every other substance that has been used for that purpose.

The fact that it will not become matted, and is a non-conductor of heat, must convince every person of its value. But one further advantage is, these Collars fit the breast of a horse immediately on their application, which is not the case with any other material. A certificate as to the utility of the article, is subjoined.

"We the subscribers, having made or used the Cork Horse Collars, made from ground or grated Cork, are fully satisfied that they surpass collars made of hair, wool, or any other substance whatever that we have been acquainted with, for the purpose of protecting the breast of a horse from the effects of the weather, and from the heat of the sun, in summer, as it being a non-conductor of heat, does not heat the breast as all other substances do; thirdly, it fits itself to any horse's breast immediately on its application; and fourthly, it has cured every horse's breast we have applied it to, or known it to

Signed, PETER STEVENS, Stage Proprietor.
HENRY A. HOVEY, Manufacturer.
E. W. LAWSON, Stage Agent.
O. B. KNAPP, Collar Maker.

The article is manufactured at the Company's Warehouse,
Head of the Western Avenue, Boston; put up in sacks of 10-
 15, and 20 lbs. each, and sold by DAVID LEWIS, dealer in Saddlery Hardware, No. 38 Kilby-st. HENRY KNAPP,

CARPENTER'S FLUID EXTRACT OF SAPARILLA, for the cure of Obstinate Eruptions of the Skin, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Biles which arise from an impure habit of body, Scaly Eruptions, Pains in the bones, Chronic Rheumatism, Tetters, Scrofula or King's Evil, White Swellings, Syphilitic Symptoms, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood, produced either by a long residence in a hot and unhealthy climate, the injudicious use of mercury, &c.

It has been a desideratum with Physicians and patients, to obtain an active preparation of Sarsaparilla in a convenient and portable form. Since Dr. Hancock's publication in the London Medico Botanical Transactions, and Mr. Hodgson's in the Transactions of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy—denying the efficacy of the decoction, and of many Decoctions, Syrups, or Compound Fluid Extracts made by long and continued boiling; I have been induced to prepare a Concentrated Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, by a process peculiar to myself; and, aided by a powerful hydraulic press, have succeeded in obtaining a more efficient and active preparation than has ever heretofore been manufactured.

This very convenient and active Syrup is now with confidence offered to the Medical Profession and the public, as possessing in an eminent degree all the medicinal properties of the Sarsaparilla in its most concentrated form.

One pint of the Extract thus prepared contains the active principle of two pounds of Sarsaparilla. One fluid ounce is equal in strength to one quart of the decoction of the London Pharmacopoeia, or the best decoction for drink.

This article possesses an agreeable and pleasant flavor—and the most delicate and fastidious stomach will bear it conveniently.

Price $1—for sale by LOWE & REED, No. 24, Merchants' Row. 3taw aug 23

NOTICE.—THE AMERICAN CORK COMPANY beg leave to apprise the public that they have new hands at MOSES MELLE'S Upholstery establishment, corner of Union and Ann streets, (up stairs,) the PATENT CORK MATTRESS, double and single, in great variety, and at various prices. We will furnish to order, any quantity or description.— These Mattresses are of the most comfortable and durable in this country, as being very valuable. First, the life preserving qualities to sea-faring people are of immense value, as they will unquestionably be the means of saving life on many occasions. It is a man floats with perfect safety on rough and boisterous seas.— Secondly, it is a most excellent and comfortable pillow, or filth of any kind, and said to be the healthiest article that has been used to sleep upon, for warm climates and a summer mattress. They are worthy the attention of those who desire to keep cool in the sultry season of the year, as they are as cool in July as in January. The public are respectfully invited to call and examine the same, as above.

THE GIFTED LADY—MRS. MOTT, Female Physician, would inform her patients and the public in general, that she has located herself in Boston, at the corner of Lynde and Cambridge streets, where she has room to administer her Systematic Vegetable Medicines, to those who are desirous of cure in all the complaints incident to the human frame.

The Patent Champoo, and Medicated Baths, in connexion with the Medicines, will be under her direction, for Females, and will be in daily operation—to those who are acquainted with these invaluable Baths, nothing may be said of their praise; to those who are not, one trial will convince of their utility.

The Baths will be open at all times, to the patients of Physicians, under their respective prescriptions.

To be had as above, Josephine Dentrice, for whitening the teeth. The Tooth Paste, for preserving them, and tightening the gums, Corn Liquid, with directions; Wound Ointment; Lip Ointment; Chiblain Liquid and Salve; Tooth Ache Drops; Tic Dolorous; Eucrobation; Head-Ache Drops; Bunions Embrocation; Strengthening Powders, and Stomachic Drinks.

INDIGESTION, JAUNDICE AND BILIOUS COMPLAINTS. ANDERSON'S VEGETABLE ELIXIR, for Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Jaundice and Bilious Complaints; Weakness of the Stomach and Bowels, and consequent loss of appetite; nervous complaints, headache, sour stomach, flatulence and habitual costiveness.

This medicine is composed entirely of vegetable substances, perfectly safe in its operation, and may be given to children or persons of the most delicate habit, without the least risk of Convenience of form success which has attended the use of it when it has been extensively used, in Boston and various other parts of the United States, and in the West Indies, attested by distinguished and highly respectable persons, affords, next to a trial, the most powerful recommendation which can be offered to those who are unacquainted with it.

Extract of a letter received from gentlemen in Boston, who suffered severely from indigestion for three years.—During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pain over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to burn in my throat, and I was obliged to eat very sparingly, and ended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered a great deal from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to bed for two or three days. During one of these most distressing periods, I was induced to try the use of your Food for the Weak. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself fully cured. I feel now as if I had never before experienced anything like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours, completely restores me. It has had the effect of restoring to me the power of digestion, and of invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs.

It has been found singularly efficacious in cases of the most obstinate headache.

It is put up in large bottles containing a pound and a half, and sold at seventy-five cents each, by Jonathan P. Hall, Jr., No. 1, Union street, John P. Whitwell, Milk street, John L. Brown, near Boylston Market, Erastus S. Holden, near the Western Avenue, Richard A. Newell, Summer street, Boston; Samuel Kidder & Co. Charlestown; E. G. Lemon, Roxbury.

RONSAFES.—S. A. & W. G. PIERCE, Agents for selling Gaylor's Patent Double Fire Proof Wrought Iron Safes and Strong Boxes, of all sizes and of a large assortment, comprising all the sizes and kinds which are patented for the use of Banks, Insurance Offices, Town Bureaus, Merchants, and others.

These safes are above all others made throughout in all their parts double doors, each secured with Chubb's Patent Detachable Locks, which cannot be picked; and the Chests are as completely Fire Proof as any vault or chest can be made. From the above it can be seen that the safes and chests are sold all at the Agent's Store and examine a Double Chest which has passed through a very severe fire, and preserved a valuable quantity of books and papers, belonging to John S. Abbott, Esq. The above is a true and correct statement of the facts.

This is to certify, that one of the above described Double Safes, which I purchased of the Messrs. S. A. & W. G. Pierce in my office in this town when the office was burned on the night of November 1st, 1856, and which was made of solid iron, and large. The Safe, weighing 700 lbs. fell from the second story into the cellar, and was exposed to an intense heat for nearly three hours. It was for a long time literally scorched. It contained several account books, notes, and papers, that were in my office, and no paper was in the least degree burnt or rendered illegible.

JOHN S. ABBOTT.

The above Chest, and some of the papers which were in it at the time of the fire, are now at the Agents' store, corner of Essex and Washington streets, and any individual or corporation who is now about purchasing Iron Safes for the protection of their books and papers, will find it for their advantage to call and examine them, as they will be perfectly satisfied that Carl's Double Safes are what they are represented to be—FIRE PROOF! and they will be still further satisfied that none other than the Double Safe would stand a severe fire.

Carl's Double Safes are a Patent article, and can only be legally purchased in this city of S. A. & W. G. PIERCE, who are their authorized Agents.
